CLAIMS:

What is claimed is:

1. A method for computing casualness for magazines comprising the steps of:

obtaining a diary of information comprising questions based on recency and frequency;

wherein questions relating to frequency are directed to two, and only two, time periods; and computing casualness based on the diary of information.